

Battleship Rock

A sheer cliff that rises above Jemez River. An adventurous challenge for hikers. There is a trail system from Battleship Rock that leads to McCauley Warm Springs and Jemez Falls.

Jemez Falls & McCauley Springs

Three miles off of National Scenic Route NM 4 is the Jemez Falls. Located at an altitude of 7,880 ft above sea level, the river drops 70 feet through a spectacular series of falls. A lengthy trail connects Jemez Falls to battleship Rock with McCauley Springs about midway.

Jemez Historic Site

Visitors can enjoy stone ruins of a 500-year-old village (Pueblo of Giusewa) and the San Jose de los Jemez church (circa 1610). In the 17th century, the Spanish established a Catholic mission at Giusewa, but the site was soon abandoned and the mission was moved to Jemez Pueblo. Amenities include an exhibition-rich heritage center and an interpretive trail that winds among the ruins.

Jemez Pueblo

Jemez Pueblo is 1 of 19 remaining pueblos in New Mexico. Explore their culture at Walatowa Visitor Center and Museum of History and Culture website to learn about the Towa culture and traditions.

Gilman Tunnels & Guadalupe Cascades

Located on NM 485 which forks off of Hwy 4 and crosses the Jemez River is a set of tunnels built in the 1920's for logging and railroad. The drive will take you through some of the oldest rocks in the Jemez Mountains and logging ruins on Peggy Mesa.

Ponderosa Valley Vineyard & Winery

Nestled in the scenic Ponderosa Valley on the southern slopes of the beautiful Jemez Mountains and southeast of Jemez Springs is Ponderosa Valley Vineyard & Winery. They are the largest Riesling vineyard in New Mexico.

Soda Dam

Soda Dam is where water from underground hot springs has flowed for centuries. The buildup of mineral deposits has formed a unique and spectacular natural dam that blocks part of the Jemez River.
